PERSONAL

My dear Allen:

I appreciate very much your kind note of 23 February, and am glad to know that there is a chance of our getting together here in New York sometime in the near future. Of course if I get to Washington, as I may, before you get up here, I'll get in contact with you.

While I did not get the same unfavorable reaction from the Tully book that you did, and while I must admit that to date I have heard nobody speak about it in terms that were derogatory to you or your work, I'm still regretful that a few of our papers, I believe only two or three of them, published the book, or rather excerpts from it.

My regret is based solely on the fact that I personally, and so far as I know all the top editorial men in our organization have thought so highly of your performance, that I felt that the entire country was your debtor.

Meantime, looking forward to seeing you reasonably soon, I am, with every good wish,

Sincerely,

Honorable Allen W. Dulles,
